1. Read the following passage carefully and answer the questions given below :

Srinivasa Ramanujan was one of the greatest mathematical genius of the world. Born in a poor Brahmin family, he gave no indication of his hidden talent. He was born at Erode in Coimbatore in 1887. His father was an accountant to a cloth merchant who had to maintain a large family on a small income. Srinivasa was granted half exemption of fees when he stood first in the Primary School Examination in the whole of Tanjore District.

From his childhood Ramanujan was of a quiet and dreamy temperament. He had answers to all sums that puzzled his classmates and seniors. Figures did not worry him, no calculation was too difficult for him. Things which were dark and muddled to his classmates were as clear as daylight to him. He always helped them with generosity which was the most lovable feature of his character.

When he was in second class his curiosity upon the subject of the 'Highest Truth' in Mathematics was roused. Later on when he moved to the 'Third Standard, he asked for problems of high nature in Mathematics. While in Fourth Standard, he could solve the most difficult problems of Trigonometry. he obtained Ewler's Theorems and proved them. He solved all the problems without any other book to aid him. To him each solution was a triumph which encouraged him to a fresh endeavour.

Ramanujan won Subrahmanyam Scholarship usually awarded for proficiency in English as well as in Mathematics. But the passion for Mathematics gained on him, he neglected all other subject so much that he failed to get promotion to higher class, thereby losing his scholarship. This was a great calamity of which he had never dreamt. He had no money, no means of earning, no books to read, no influence. No help came to him from outside. He was now eighteen without any definite plan. He joined Pachaiyappa's College Madras but had to return home due to illness.

2. Read the following passage and answer the questions that follow:
Work is essential for man. It is blessing. It is one of the precious privileges he has. It is the source of all other rights. It brings him the good things of life and promotes his well being. Work is an integral part of life. Without it life is deprived of its substances and character.

Work gives us happiness. It banishes vice and poverty from life. Work, according to Carlyle, is the grand cure of all the maladies that beset mankind. It is key to all progress. Work is life, idleness is death. The prosperity of any nation depends on the work of the people there. If they remain like lotus eaters, no nation can progress or achieve anything remarkable. The prosperity achieved by nations like Japan and Israel bears out this. No pains, no gains.

All kind of work deserve our respect. But there are a number of people who consider some kinds of work ignoble and inferior. The work of farmers is much more important than that of other professionals. The reason is that if the farmers do not work, we shall not get any food stuff. If street cleaners do not work, life in cities and towns will prove difficult.

For Carlyle, work is worship. According to him, there is perennial nobleness and even sacredness in work. The worker is the saviour of society, the redeemer of the race. Tagore says, God is the tiller of the hard ground and the path maker. He is with them in sun and shower and his garments covered with dust. The best form of worship is to work and serve others.

It is necessary for our young men and women to recognize the dignity of labour. Most of them prefer white collar jobs to manual work. Manual work, according to Gandhiji, gives an opportunity to all who wish to take part in the government and the well being of the state. We should look up to the worker who earns his livelihood by sweat of his brow.
